"I'm incredibly excited to have been asked to speak to the attendees at the Austin Home & Garden Show this year. It's a great time to buy a home and I expect that there's going to be a lot of people looking into buying their first home there as well as people who want to learn how to take advantage of the current market conditions to trade up to a larger home or to buy an investment property," says Renner.

"I'll be speaking about the outlook for the Austin housing market in the upcoming year - and even though it's just begun, 2010 is shaping up to be an amazing year for Austin's buyer's market and I'm really looking forward to giving my audience the information they need to make their dreams of home ownership a reality as well as advise to help sellers position their homes to sell quickly," Renner continued.

Renner's speech is one of many which will be featured at 2010's Austin Home & Garden Show, but for first time home buyers and anyone else considering the purchase of a home in the Austin area, it's certain to be one of the most eagerly anticipated. Renner's years of experience in the area's housing market make him one of the most authoritative sources of information on current conditions as well as on where Austin's buyer's market is headed in the coming year.
